

NEW YORK POST

The Ivana-logues

Ivana Trump is a newlywed, and her whole life is a honeymoon

Photo: Pierre Pichon

See and be seen: Cindy Crawford and Rande Gerber soak up some rays in Saint-Tropez.

"Forget about champagne, OK? It makes you fat."

I am spending the summer in Saint-Tropez and there are a lot of celebrities here. You see them all at the most famous disco, Les Caves du Roy, which I try to avoid at all costs. I go to Le Club 55, which is the nicest beach restaurant in the city. Catherine Zeta-Jones and Michael Douglas are around. There's Sean Combs, Barry Diller and Diane von Furstenburg. Bono has a house here. Joan Collins and her husband, Percy, have a beautiful home in the hills. They are our very best friends and we love them—my husband, Rossano, and I have dinner with them all the time. Meanwhile, Star Jones and I have lunch. Roberto Cavalli is here with his very unusual boat: It's gray, and when the sun hits, it becomes purple and pink. Penélope Cruz is around. When you see these people, you wave, you say hi. Sometimes they send you a drink. By the way, rosé is the only wine people drink here. The south of France has the best rosés in the world. Forget about champagne, OK? It makes you fat. Denise Rich sent me a bottle a few days ago, which was very nice. But I really don't drink champagne.

My latest discovery is...

Environ creams, which I bought at my favorite spa, Canyon Ranch. One of them is exfoliating and the other one gives you nourishment. They are absolutely unbelievable.

Photo: Courtesy Environ.DERMAGENESIS, 0204

C-Quesse 1 vitamin moisturizer, $110, and Claytech Masque, $38, Environ, 866-866-3584.