No matter the procedure, Dr. Hamori likes to establish a friendly rapport with each of her patients. Her serene office, decorated with aqua blue walls and subdued lighting, evokes a feeling of comfort and relaxation. "It is important for patients to be completely at ease so they can feel comfortable discussing their cosmetic needs." In this regard, Dr. Hamori is able to get her patients to tell her what troubles them when they look in the mirror. "My philosophy is to achieve a natural result with every surgery and procedure," says the board-certified plastic surgeon. "We want patients to look refreshed, not frozen."

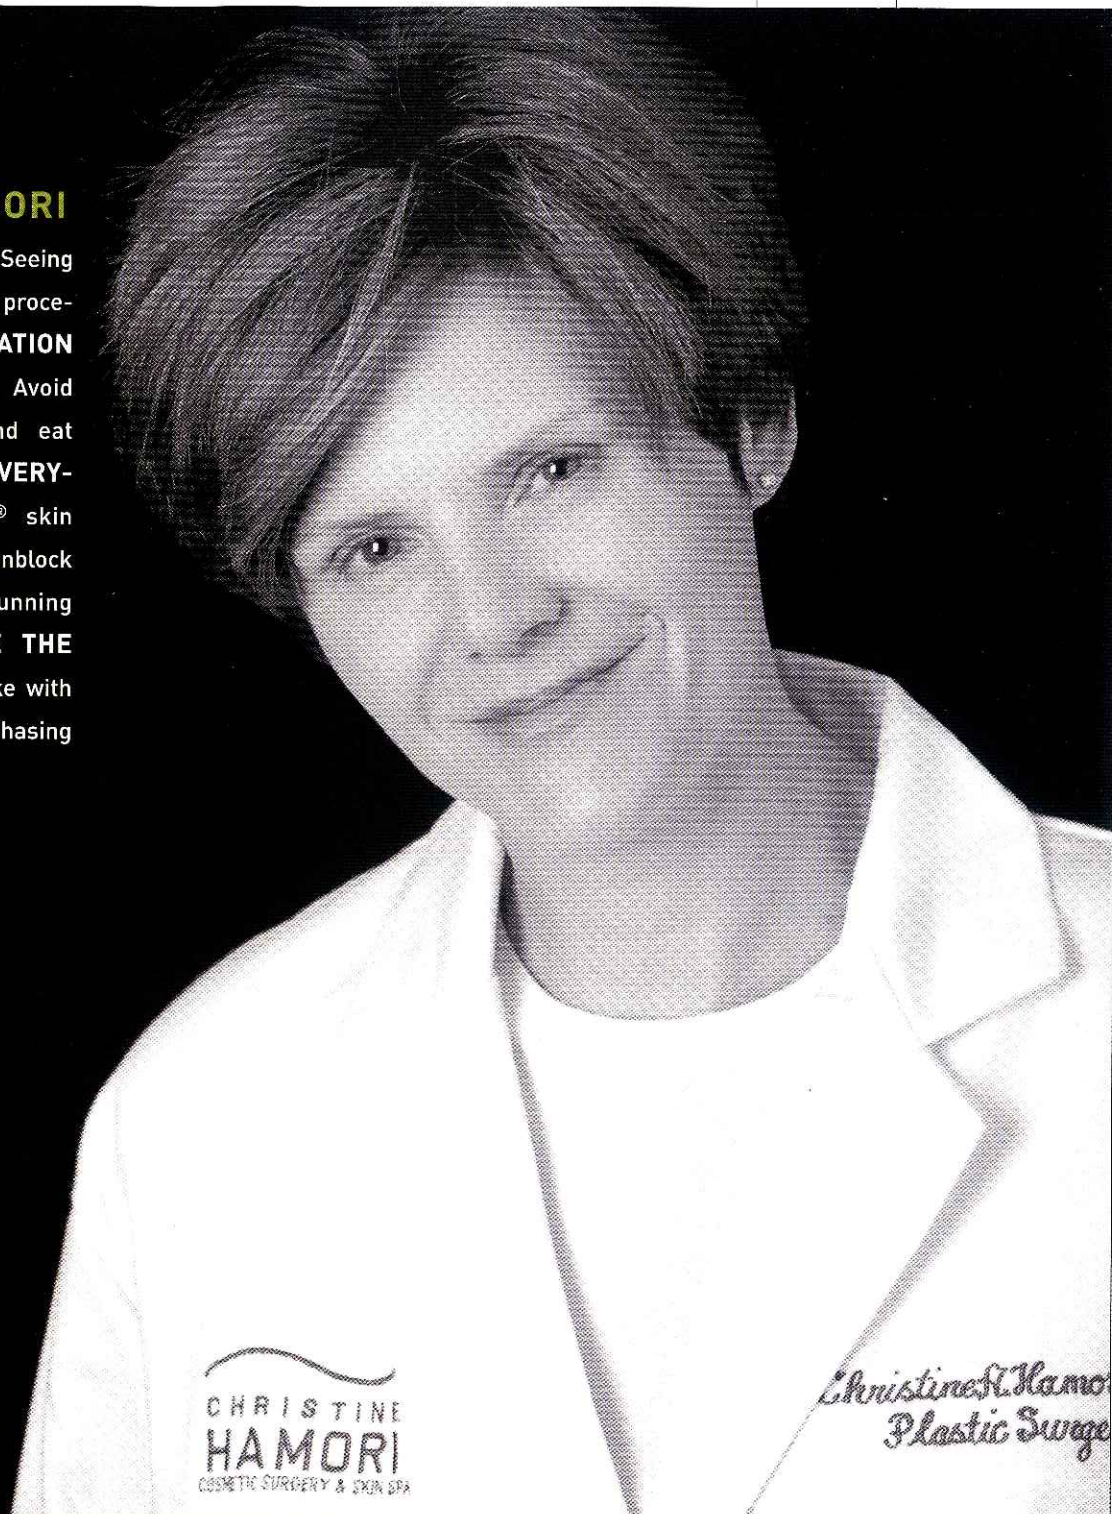

Dr. Hamori feels that patients should have the opportunity to look as good as they feel on the inside. "I cannot tell you how many women say, 'I see my mother in the mirror and it scares me.'" She performs all the major body contouring and face and neck procedures, including injectables (Botox®, Restylane® and Juvéderm™), but first gauges what the patient is most comfortable with before deciding on the best course of action. "In some cases, patients may feel more comfortable starting off with a noninvasive procedure. Take facial enhancement, for example. At times we will start off patients with a soft tissue filler before considering a surgical facial procedure. Whatever makes them feel most at ease."

"My philosophy is to help patients reveal their inner beauty and youthfulness through simple minimally invasive procedures and skin treatments."
